

American Red Cross

Donor Dollars at Work in Haiti

Emergency Relief: $66 mil

After the earthquake, ready-to-eat-meals were provided to survivors, like Etienne Radine and Louis Anouse, by the American Red Cross.

Shelter: $173 mil

In addition to providing more permanent shelter solutions, retrofitting homes and repairing infrastructure, training has been provided to construction workers, like Aldomoro Victor (center) and Pierre-Richard Etienne, on safer building practices that will make houses more resistant to natural disasters.

Health: $73 mil

American Red Cross has helped repair, construct and operate eight hospitals and clinics, including partial funding of Mirebalais University Hospital.

Cholera Prevention: $25 mil

Prevention efforts include vaccinations, water purification tablets, as well as distribution of oral dehydration tablets.

Water & Sanitation: $47 mil

We've helped ensure that families have access to clean water and sanitation systems, as well as large scale public education campaigns that encourage safe hygiene. Here, workers build a septic tank for newly built housing units in Morne Lazare, Pétion-Ville.

Livelihoods: $48 mil

We seek to improve household and community stability through savings programs, conditional loans and vocational training. Ginette Antenor, the owner of Cymara's beauty salon, is in one such program for entrepreneurs that helps hone business and marketing skills through training and support.

Disaster Preparedness: $56 mil

The American Red Cross has helped families, like Dalida Cadaste's, create customized emergency plans, so they can be ready to evacuate their homes in case of hurricanes, tropical storms or other emergencies.

