H.O.P.E. is grateful for American Red Cross' support of its cholera and community health programs in the commune of Borgne, on the northern coast of Haiti. Since 2011, American Red Cross' funding has made it possible for H.O.P.E./Alyans Sante Borgne to mount an effective education, prevention, and treatment cholera program and to extend much needed services to the most remote villages of this isolated region of 80,000 inhabitants. Over this period, the American Red Cross has contributed $1.3 million to these initiatives and made a positive impact in the region. We have had excellent relations with our program directors who worked closely with us to ensure that staff and beneficiaries made the most of this opportunity.
