A LETTER FROM THE CEO AND CHAIR OF THE BOARD

Dear friends and valued supporters,

We would like to express our deep appreciation for your financial support, which has allowed us to help so many Alaskan families. Through your generosity, the American Red Cross of Alaska has been able to attend to the emergent needs of communities throughout our state. As an organization, we continue to provide material support during a disaster, and will continue to strive to enhance community preparedness before disaster strikes.

In the past year, our small staff was blessed with the hard work of close to 600 Alaska volunteers from every corner of the state, responding to a multitude of incidents, ranging from fire to flood. The massive fires striking Willow and Kenai captured the attention of many, but we were also able to support those affected by numerous single and multi-family structure fires. Fire was not the only culprit, flooding in many communities forced people out of their homes. We had the privilege to provide hope, a helping hand, a hot meal and a place to sleep for many.

With your help, the American Red Cross of Alaska was able to continue its rural volunteer outreach initiative. We are pleased to share that there are now more trained Red Cross volunteers in both urban and rural Alaska than ever; people ready and willing to respond immediately to disasters in their local communities. In so many instances this means a disaster-assistance hug in person instead of contact over the phone. Other times it can mean help being offered by an American Red Cross of Alaska trained volunteer in a neighboring village hub, where local ties and trust already exist. Today, we are asked to respond more frequently, in more areas, an indication that our outreach efforts are working. We are entering into collaborative partnerships with local government to better serve our diverse communities.

The American Red Cross of Alaska team and the board of directors are honored to serve our unique and amazing state. Should you have any questions regarding our mission or the ongoing programs supported by the American Red Cross of Alaska, please contact CEO Tanguy Libbrecht, or any other member of this remarkable Alaskan team.

Sincerely,

WILDFIRE RESPONSE

Numerous wildfires throughout Alaska resulted in damaged homes and evacuations for residents in Matanuska-Susitna (Mat-Su) Borough, Kenai Peninsula Borough, Denali Borough, SE Fairbanks, Fairbanks North Star Borough, Yukon-Koyukuk and Bethel.

The American Red Cross of Alaska provided support by setting up shelters and by providing recovery services to affected clients in those regions, working together with partners such as Salvation Army, My House, United Methodist Church in Willow, and Alaska VOAD.

HOME FIRE CAMPAIGN

In 2015 the American Red Cross of Alaska focused on the Home Fire Campaign and The Pillowcase Project as two very useful tools to help educate the Alaskan community about disaster preparedness. Through the Home Fire Campaign we were able to reach dozens of households to install new smoke alarms along with replacing batteries in already existing smoke alarms. Plans are ongoing this year to take this initiative statewide.

PROJECT PILLOWCASE

The Pillowcase Project is a preparedness education program for children in grades 3-5, which teaches them about personal and family preparedness, local hazards and basic coping skills. Upon completion of the program, students receive a sturdy pillowcase in which they are encouraged to build their own personal emergency supplies kit.

In Alaska, we attended dozens of community event throughout the year and have reached over 2,000 community members. Students were taught disaster preparedness in the event of a wildfire, home fire, earthquake, or winter storm.

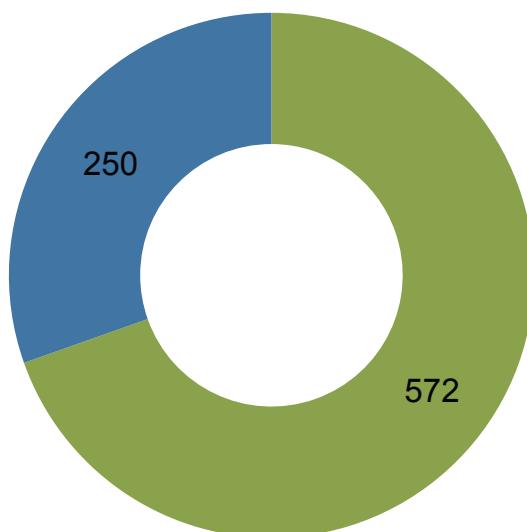

As a team, the American Red Cross of Alaska strives to continue to reach out to our community in hopes to reduce disasters and promote education and preparedness for when they do.

SERVICE TO THE ARMED FORCES

FY15 total SAF cases = 822

- SAF Emergency Services Cases
- SAF Non Emergency Services Cases

The American Red Cross of Alaska's Service to the Armed Forces (SAF) program supports service members and their families both during times of deployment as well as during times at home. We also support retiree, veterans, guard, and reserve components as well. We have six core functions as SAF. These are national set standards for our SAF program. The following are the main functions we perform at all times.

- Education (Outreach & Briefings): Outreach is the means by which information is delivered to help military families and the community better understand, prepare for, and respond to the daily challenges of military life. Outreach can include brochures, advertisements or more formal briefings, among other things. Briefings educate service members, veterans, family members, military commands, and community partners about American Red Cross programs and services and how to access them in communities across the country and around the world.
- Information and Referral: American Red Cross offices help service members, veterans, Department of Defense personnel (overseas), and their families with identifying their needs, providing general or specific information about resources and offering referrals to an organization that may assist them. Information and referral also involves building and maintaining relationships with partner organizations in the community in order to meet needs that are not within the mission and programs of the American Red Cross.
- Engage Volunteers: Volunteer Services includes recruiting, placing, supervising, training, and recognizing adult and youth volunteers to deliver American Red Cross programs and services.
- Emergency Services: The American Red Cross of Alaska responds to military families experiencing an immediate need by providing the following services: Emergency Communications, Family Follow-up, Financial Assistance, Suicide Prevention Actions, and Disaster Services.
- Service to Military & Veterans Affairs (VA) Medical Facilities: The American Red Cross serves the military community in medical facilities around the world. Medical facilities include military and VA hospitals, VA outpatient clinics, military community health care clinics, Vet Centers, VA Community Living Centers, and Veteran State Homes.
- Building Family Resiliency: The American Red Cross offers programs that seek to build resiliency through its worldwide offices. The American Red Cross of Alaska has programs, training opportunities and services available for active military members, veterans and their families. These opportunities provide a continuum of care throughout a service members' career and after their military service ends.

We have programs such as Dental Assistant Training program that trains spouses and dependents valuable job skills for free that they can take with them from one duty station to the next. At Joint Base Elmendorf-Richardson (JBER) we have an animal visitation program that is led and worked through volunteers. They take the trained animals into the hospital and provide sunshine wherever it is needed.

We provide also family follow-up to the service members who use our SAF emergency message line. Since the beginning of fiscal year 15 we have serviced hundreds of messages with family follow-up, resources, information and referral, and sent our condolences on their losses and hard times.

INTERNATIONAL DEPLOYMENT

Ellie Rubenstein Reflects On Her Experience in Nepal

Many people have experiences that bring them to the Red Cross. For Ellie, it was her first CPR class at the Red Cross, learning Lifeguarding skills. As you grow older, you think of ways to give back to the skills that enabled you to perform your passion.

For Ellie, it was simply helping others. Before moving to Alaska, DC native Ellie Rubenstein used to drive along the Clara Barton parkway and has always looked up to the founder of the American Red Cross. When she moved to Alaska, Ellie's first engagement with the American Red Cross was teaching restorative yoga at the local military base. The passion and dedication to helping others led her to the local American Red Cross office one day and she craved more involvement.

She spent the year getting her hands dirty, through Service to the Armed Forces, Disaster Action Team, and Development. There simply was not any area that she was not interested in. At the culmination of the annual Real Heroes event, Ellie was sad and did not know where to help next. Coincidentally, the Earthquake in Nepal Happened. Without any hesitation, Ellie raised her hand to help. Unaware what she had signed up for, she wondered if she had done the right thing, and would she really be able to help her local Red Cross chapter by going to Nepal.

A week later, with the support of the local chapter, she was packed and ready to go and more importantly, with the skills learned at the American Red Cross of Alaska, she was confident she could assist in any way needed with this major international relief event. Deployed for five weeks, Ellie arrived one month after the major earthquake and was American Red Cross individual #4 on the ground.

While the local American Red Cross chapter was in the midst of responding to the earthquake, they were also setting up their chapter for the American Red Cross Nepal. Balancing between setting up a chapter delegation and responding to a disaster relief area was more hands on experience to learn how an NGO truly operates at the epicenter of humanitarian relief.

Ellie's job description was on the program side, meeting with local Red Cross chapters, in three different districts to identify immediate needs. Right after she arrived in Nepal, following Gail McGovern's visit, Gail McGovern created for the Red Cross for the first time, a pool of $500,000 for immediate needs. Ellie's job was to determine the most efficient use of this funding.

Traveling, learning, talking, Ellie discovered the vast majority were female related needs and funded everything from female birthing centers, female showers in camps, female volunteers to collect beneficiary data, cultural centers and water tanks. No words can describe watching young children and mothers so thankful to not have to walk two hours, for a clean private shower thanks to the Red Cross. More importantly while every country was represented by the Red Cross, locals had a particular affinity for anyone who showed up with a smile and an American Red Cross logo.

Every day was an adventure, when the country was still experiencing 1-2 aftershocks a day, learning to write legal agreements and distribute cash with no legal bank account. You understand what it means to operate in the third world when abiding by 1st world principles and values.

There is no greater chance for anyone to understand the 7 fundamental principles of the American Red Cross than by deploying as part for the Red Cross in the greatest time of need. Ellie experienced overwhelming compassion and truly received more than she could ever give.

NEPAL

thank you

Red Cross Donors,

Thank you so much for your donations for financial year 15 (FY15). The American Red Cross of Alaska cannot operate without the help of our donors and so we thank you for allowing us to do the work that we do.

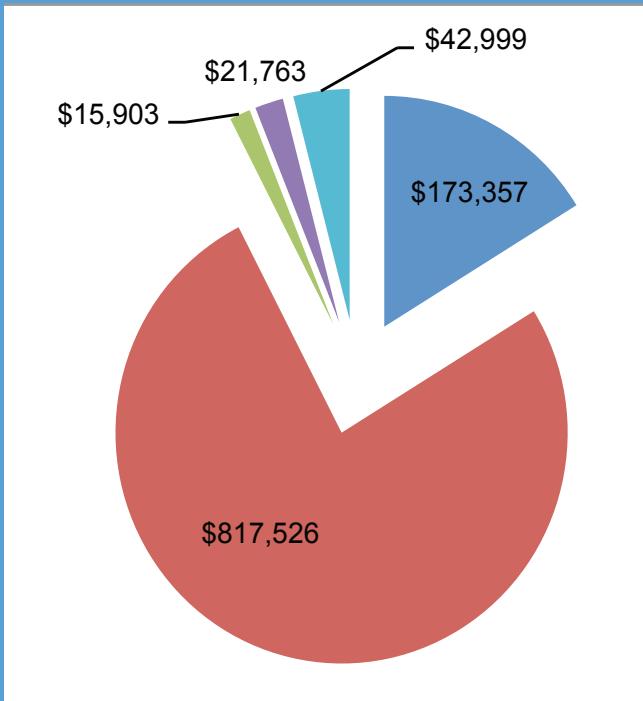

The money we raise goes to help those who have been affected by disaster and allows us to provide food, clothing and shelter to them, as well as provide comfort to those whose lives have been turned upside down. Not only do we stay during the disasters, but we are there after the events to ensure that families and communities are rebuilt and able to move forward.

In conjunction with our volunteers, we are able to ensure that every penny designated for Alaska, stays in Alaska and goes towards these disaster victims.

Besides the disaster assistance provided by the American Red Cross of Alaska, we are working on Preparedness and Prevention programs, such as the Home Fire Campaign, designed to reduce home fire deaths by 25% over the next 5 years by installing free smoke detectors with 10 year lithium batteries in the homes of financially challenged neighborhoods. The funds donated to this program help cover the cost of materials, travel and installation costs.

We could never do what we do without this financial assistance. American Red Cross is the only Congressionally Chartered nonprofit in the country, with a mandate to provide humanitarian aid but, yet, we are not federally funded. All aid is dependent on the generosity of our donors, corporate partners and grant and foundation gifts.

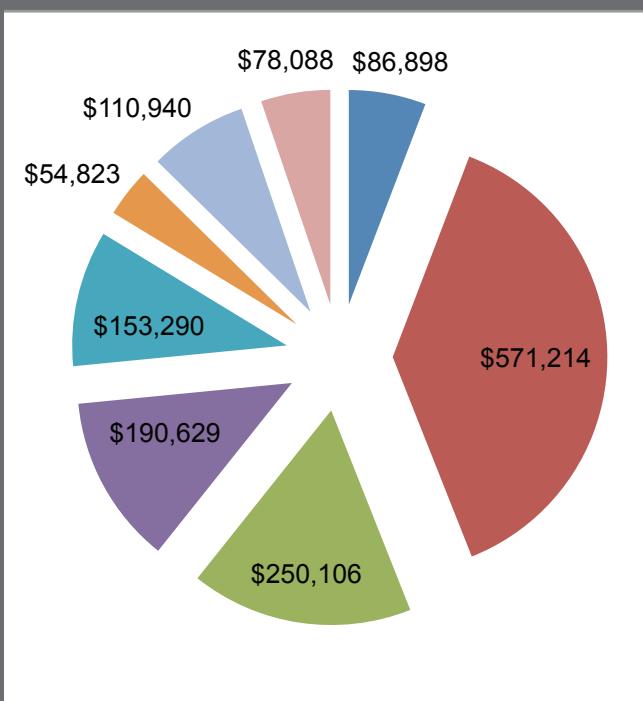

We depend on our donors to help us continue our mission and to help their fellow Alaskans who have experienced tremendous loss. With your help, the American Red Cross of Alaska will be there with food, shelter, clothes, a warm blanket, comfort and hope.

Thank you to Hannah Jones for her assistance with the design and layout of this annual report.

Hannah started working with the American Red Cross of Alaska when she was 15. She is now a senior in college, studying biomedical engineering. Her mother has sat on the board of the American Red Cross of Alaska for many years and they consider themselves a life-long Red Cross family.

American Red Cross of Alaska

Alaska is a unique place in the nation and indeed the world. Its geographic location, rugged terrain and immense undeveloped regions make emergency preparedness and response challenging and exciting. Extreme and unpredictable weather conditions, harsh arctic climate, and lack of infrastructure contribute to difficulties that arise when administering emergency services.

Challenges like extended periods of darkness in the winter and communities that are accessible only by air or water require special logistical planning. In spite of the aforementioned obstacles, the American Red Cross of Alaska has had a successful history of providing humanitarian and emergency services to people in need. Today, the organization continues to grow and develop new strategies to overcome obstacles and meet future challenges with innovation, energy and commitment.

THANK YOU!
