

Mary J. Barneby, Regional CEO

Mary currently is the Regional CEO of the American Red Cross. She started her journey with American Red Cross on September 14, 2020.

Previously, Mary J Barneby was the CEO for the Girl Scouts of Connecticut. During her tenure at Girl Scouts, she successfully led a major transformation of volunteer support systems with a focus on streamlining volunteer paperwork and introducing service improvements.

Prior to joining the Girl Scouts in 2012, Mary had an illustrious career in executive positions in the financial services industry. A life-long volunteer, Mary has worked with multiple non-profit agencies as well, including posts on the Board of Directors at the International Women's Forum, at Interval House in Hartford, DOMUS, at the YMCA in Stamford, and on the Board of Governors at the University of New Haven.

Mary received her undergraduate degree from NYU and earned her MBA in finance from Fordham University. For her leadership and service, Mary has been recognized by Fortune Magazine, The NY Times, as NYU Alumna of the Year, with the Highest Lead Award by the Women's Venture Fund, and with the Wise Woman Award by the National Organization of Italian American Women.