A Message from the CEO

Every disaster is personal, no matter how big or small, or how many individuals are affected. Whether it’s a house fire, flooding, a hostage situation or other tragedy, it’s a disaster to that person or family. When someone has just lost everything they own in a fire or loved ones in a tragedy, they are not able to think clearly. That’s when trained Red Cross volunteers step in to help a hurting neighbor, to make sure that prescription medicine lost in a fire is refilled, that they have a bed to sleep in that night, or first month’s rent. And we continue to check on these victims for 30 days, and longer if necessary, to make sure they are recovering. We do these things without any expectation of payment because all of our disaster training and disaster services are free. We tell our victims that our services are a gift from the people of Hawaii.

Most people don’t realize that Red Cross is on call 24 hours a day, 365 days a year. When we get a hotline call from first responders, our dedicated volunteers rush to the scene of a disaster within two hours of being notified, wherever it is, no matter if it’s day or night. We work to meet the immediate emergency needs of individuals and families affected by a disaster, to get them back on their feet after tragedy strikes. We are able to provide this assistance because of the generosity of our donors, volunteers, and the community.

In addition to responding to disaster victims with caring and compassion and helping people prepare for disasters, our mission is to save lives. Each year, we teach over 20,000 people essential lifesaving skills such as first aid, CPR, and aquatics to enable them to help their own families, friends, co-workers and neighbors during times of emergencies. We also provide emergency communication between deployed Hawaii military service members and their families. The Red Cross is not a government agency and so we rely on the generosity and aloha spirit of Hawaii’s people to deliver these critical services to our community. We are proud of our 93 year history of service to Hawaii and we are also grateful for the support of our 4,000+ volunteers and 15,000 donors for their compassionate contribution to the cause of humanity.

In FY11, 34 Red Cross dog volunteers visited patients at Tripler Army Medical Center as part of the Red Cross Tripler Human Animal Bond (HAB) Program. The American Red Cross sponsors this pet facilitated therapy program, which uses animals to assist a therapist in helping patients who are recovering from physical, mental or social illness. Volunteers bring pets to wards, clinics and waiting areas for informal visits. All animals are screened by Army Veterinary Services and must pass strict behavioral and physical qualifications to be a part of this program. All handlers also receive special training. For more information, contact the Red Cross Human Animal Bond Program, 433-6631.
