

Brian Southern and his wife Katie, are residents of the Evansville, Indiana community, along with their two cats who allow Brian and Katie to live with them. They enjoy antiques, weekend excursions, and took advantage of the pandemic time to become certified in scuba diving. Over the past 38 years, Brian has been a small business owner spending most of his career owning a Process Engineering company IPCG that specialized in Food, Beverage, and Specialty Chemical design work. Today, in addition to the IPCG Engineering business, he is the Owner/Agent of a State Farm Insurance Agency on the Westside of Evansville. Being a State Farm Agent allows Brian to pursue his passion for community service and working with non-profit organizations and mentoring new entrepreneurs with their small business startups. Recently he was appointed to the Indiana Small Business Development Center as a Business Advisor. He is very active in the community as a Board Member of the Evansville African American Museum, Board Member and volunteer at the American Red Cross with their Disaster Services Team, BioMed Blood delivery, Mass Care unit, Red Cross Ambassador, and serves on the Red Cross BioMed committee, the Red Cross regional and state Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion committees. Brian is also an Executive Board Member of SIMA 100, a mentoring program with Lincoln Elementary. Brian and his businesses are strong supporters of local events for non-profit groups that serve our various communities.
